AGE 3, IRAQ

World Vision®

MILLIONS OF CHILDREN ARE DISPLACED by war and other threats, in Syria and around the world.

They flee their homes with little more than the clothes on their backs, not knowing when or how they'll be able to return.

Alan is displaced from his home.

Three-year-old Alan is a Yazidi Iraqi boy. His sister Alamas was killed by mortars when the Yazidi, an ethnic and religious minority, were forcibly driven from their homes up the barren mountainside of Mt. Sinjar in 2014. Instead of finding refuge, tens of thousands were trapped on the mountain for days with no access to food, water, or medical care. Now Alan and his sister Ade live in a camp for internally displaced people in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq.

Please pray for Alan, his family, and the other displaced children in Iraq.

They flee their homes with little more than the clothes on their backs, not knowing when or how they'll be able to return.

Sedra is a refugee child.

Sedra, 7, loves her pink plastic comb; it reminds her of school days in Syria. She found it on the ground at Za'atari Refugee Camp in Jordan, where her family is living after fleeing the conflict in Syria. The camp is crowded, and its streets are plagued by potholes and standing water. "All I want is to be with my best friend," says Sedra, who counts the tines in her comb to practice her math skills. "I want to go home."

Please pray for Sedra, her family, and the other refugee children in their camp.

They flee their homes with little more than the clothes on their backs, not knowing when or how they'll be able to return.

Noor is a refugee child.

Noor is only 1 year old, but he's seen more hardship than many adults. He and his mother and two sisters spent 10 days on the road after escaping Syria, trying desperately to find a way to reunite with Noor's father in Sweden. Noor has never met his father, who went in search of a safer place for his family before Noor was born. Now Noor waits on the border of Serbia, like thousands of other refugees, with no certainty about his future.

Please pray for Noor, his family, and other refugee children traveling across borders.

Seiber is displaced from her home.

Five-year-old Seiber was forced to leave her home with her extended family—all 25 of them. They trekked over barren desert mountains on foot to escape the violence in their hometown. Now their only shelter is a school in Iraq that has allowed refugees to sleep in the classrooms—but the school walls may not be enough to stave off the winter cold.

Please pray for Seiber, her family, and other displaced children in Iraq.

Aaliya is a refugee child.

Aaliya, 6, holds her baby sister Amal, trying to soak up what little winter sunlight touches their ragged tent in Bekaa Valley, Lebanon. Their home was in Al-Raqqa, a city that has suffered badly in the Syrian civil war. The girls and their 4-year-old sister Hasna, along with their mother, have been separated from their father. "I take good care of them," says Aaliya. "I'm the eldest, and my father told me to take care of my sisters."

Please pray for these three sisters, their mother, and the other children in their refugee camp.

In dozens of camps like theirs in Lebanon, Syrian refugees wait and hope for an end to the war, yearning for home. "I want to go back to Syria," Narjes says. "If I could go back, I would be happy. I would play with my cousins." If the war were over, she says wistfully, "I would go to school."
