Physically Distant. Still Connected.

We are pained not to be at NAYDO in person this year. We are, however, committed to standing with you all as we navigate this incredibly challenging time. For our customers, we wanted to make sure you are aware of three steps we are taking to provide immediate support. Please reach out if you need help accessing any of the following:

- Premium reductions to better match your reduced exposures during shutdown
- Flexible payment options for those facing disruption to revenue
- Consulting support and resources focused both on your new normal, and on how we return to programming once the current crisis is over

We've heard from many of you about the inspiring ways that you are adapting. Whether it's childcare for essential workers, shelter-based programming for the vulnerable, or virtual DJ sessions and campfire songs for those staying home—you are discovering new ways to innovate and serve. And we are committed to doing the same. Whether or not you are a customer, please take a look at the COVID-19 resources on our homepage and share as you see fit.

We are sorry we can't be there in person this year. But we take comfort in the fact that physical distance does not need to mean disconnection. In fact, we feel closer to you than we ever have before.

We look forward to seeing this group again in St. Louis, next April, and encourage you to consider joining us a day early for Philanthropy Live—an opportunity to give back to our host community.
